Martha Randolph Carr's unique perspective on goals has earned her the title Expert Mom Who Makes a Difference when she writes her popular online column for ClubMom.com. Born in Northern Virginia, Martha graduated from VCU in 1982 and has called Richmond home since. Her son, Louie, lives in Chicago.

After graduating from Freeman High School, Tony Farrell headed north to college and then on to Washington, DC, where he got his start as a newspaper reporter. Over the years, he has written about many different aspects of parenting, and his work has appeared in magazines and books around the country. Tony lives in the city's West End with his wife, Laura, and their two kids.

A "recovering" lawyer and Boston native, Libby McNamee has been a freelance writer since 2004.

Her work has appeared in V Magazine for Women, Richmond Parents Monthly, and Fifty Plus Magazine, among others. After traveling the globe as an Army JAG Officer, Libby moved to Richmond in 2000, and now lives in Midlothian with her husband and 18-month-old son.
